This issue is brought forth by the kind people at Q-tips cotton swabs, the premier cotton swab manufacturing franchise. Q-tips contain no impurities, only food-grade cotton. Accept no substitute, not even Bob's Swabs brand swabs. They contain almost 50 percent crude oil! Keep up your patronization, and remember: a clean ear is an empty ear. Now go away.

So far, Bob Marley has had a bad hair-life.

This issue of the Flying News can be made into a rocking horse!! Follow these easy steps:

- 1) Set it on the ground, face up, with the top towards the rising sun.
- 2) Fashion and attach reigns to the leeward and starboard sides.
- 3) Find some way to ride it.

Is a bird under the mammal or fish category?

Anonymous column:
Windmills

There has recently arisen a newfangled type of power-production which has only now come to my knowledge. My swiftest and most reliable sources have informed me that a device called a "windmill" is now being used to exploit our resources and create power out of seemingly nothing for businesses and farmers. It seems that they set up many large towers in an open field, each with a 3 or 4-pronged propeller (surprisingly, due to the stupidity of their design, they never become airborne) which turns as the wind blows and thus creates power. Now if this device was to fall into the wrong hands, and be used for evil intents and purposes, then I want one. But if it should be used simply to create power while using up precious wind, why, then it must be stopped.

The personages using these machines have to my knowledge no purpose in mind but to provide an alternative for nuclear power. I could identify with them if their contraption was potentially harmful, but it seems entirely pure of this (except to cute little innocent birds and insects which become less than what they were before when they make first contact with the blades, but we won't go into this). Thus, I must conclude that it is inherently right, and when that is true, I am not happy. And when I am not happy, the mortality rate goes up. Make me happy.

Warning: The following is a very controversial interview by the current U.S. president, Bill "hillbillybillyjobobraycyrus" Clinton. It was conducted by the late Vim Vocifero, whose obituary can be found in the ~~weather~~ obituary section. Mr. Clinton has had interviews with us before, but never like this. Stay tuned.

An interview

Vim Vocifero: So, how long have you been president, man?

Bill Clinton: To the best of my knowledge, two years, but I have been light-headed for much of the time, so I cannot be sure.

Vim Vocifero: What do you think the average Martian would think about what the tallest resident in Peru wrote his four foot two friend who thought that he lived in Silver Spring, but really lived in College Park last Tuesday?

once there was 4

Bill Clinton: Due to my Martian skills which through diligent study I acquired while examining subway graffiti in New York, I am able to give a definitive answer to that question: the average Martian would thoughtfully think that the excellence of my excuse (that my inhaler is broken) would lead the Peruvian president to write that I have one of the bluest beards on the planet.

Vim Vocifero: Are U aware that a Viking wind surfer was found frozen in a polar ice cap, and that he has been thawed out, and is currently residing in the Pentagon?

Bill Clinton: I have been so informed.

Vim Vocifero: So, dude, what do you think about the attempts to execute you?

Bill Clinton: It appears to me often in my drug-induced hallucinations that it is clearly the result of the increase of birth rate in several 2.7th world countries.

Vim Vocifero: Could you tell us what you are going to do about this?

Bill Clinton: I have sent the WHO, IPPF, and other UN-sponsored piratical bands to increasingly support abortion, midnight basketball, drug trafficking, yogurt, and other reductivical rate-of-birth controllatory devices in these countries, to maintain US majority and superiority.

Vim Vocifero: Doesn't that sound undemocratic?

Bill Clinton: It is fully in accord with evolutionary principals.

Vim Vocifero: That is not...

Bill Clinton: I can work with you there.

Vim Vocifero: But...

Bill Clinton: I feel your pain, and, by the way, I have some good stuff to sell.

Editor's note- this magazine and, therefore, the world, disagrees with him almost entirely. This magazine does not support any political party, and dislikes all politicians because they are usually greedy, rich, ugly, fat, phat, stupid, foolish, phoolish, and lazy. We support term limitations (one term). We disagree fully with all his words, as reported in this article.

This article has been illegally copied without the authorization of Bill Clinton, who is temporarily masquerading as the U.S. president. This news leaked directly from the pentagon.

Warning: this next blurb will leave you with a bad taste in your mouth.

At this point, I would like to apologize to the public, because, at this point, there would usually be a continuation of our popular column entitled "Brain Expansion". It is not here, however, because an evil sloth-like mass made of chicken-fat gelatin has completely engulfed one of our editors-in-chief! Aaugh! While we try to eat him out of his predicament, I leave you so that you may read the next column.

A treatise on yogurt

I firmly believe that the root of all happiness leads to one thing-yogurt. Yogurt, as defined in the Random Spouse dictionary, (the world's most knowledgeable source of information you can buy with your tweezer collection) is "a small substance which is tasty. It can be eaten, mixed with vodka, spread on grated cheese, or can be used as a spray-cleaner for windows, though the latter is not recommended. It is multi-cultural (ha!) (groan?) and can also be mixed with fruit as well as eaten." This is a very adequate definition, but I believe the thirteenth-century poet Ovid can best sum it up in his poem.

News

In other news today, the Royal Naval Corps recently commissioned its newest troop transport ship, the U.S.S. Donkey. Made of carbon, plutonium, uranium, ceiling tiles, and unobtanium, it is the most advanced Russian troop ship to date. It contains advanced sensors that can pinpoint every single ship in the world so it can launch its missiles at them (although we at The Flying News do not know why they would want to do this). The Donkey, named after its namesake, is scheduled to leave the dry-dock in mid April.

An extraterrestrial conspiracy in Hollywood was recently uncovered after an extensive undercover investigation. Sources say that since mid-November, Aliens had been abducting then taking over celebrities' bodies one by one while they slept. Police sergeant Bob (no relation to Bob of Bob's Swabs) explained to the press that what really tipped the police department off was when an two aliens posing as Siskel and Ebert recently gave a blockbuster movie thirty-seven thumbs up.

-News Flash-

The U.S.S. Donkey has been abandoned! on its maiden voyage, it was recently evacuated while under full steam in the middle of the Atlantic. A shipmate who was interviewed explained to the press that the cause was food-poisoning. Everyone on board, he explained, had hallucinations after eating yogurt which had gone bad. The evacuation took place after the captain spotted a human skull part in the middle of the forecastle, which caused mass pandemonium on The Donkey. No one was injured.

In the last bit of news today, the Flying News shalt have it's fourth issue celebration. It is not going to be much of a celebration, however, because the lawsuits are really piling up.

Obituaries

Vim Vocifero, our founder and supremely-high editor-in-chief (among other things) was cruelly slain by a steel-clad bullet on Friday night. A combined force, composed of 47 men from 123 nations invaded the Flying News headquarters at 12:00 midnight on April first. Vim Vocifero grabbed his mighty sword, and boldly slew all of the villainous invaders before he was finally violently shot in the brain. He had been guarding the main gate of the office, and nobody discovered the body until two days later. The great noise of battle was unheard due to the extremely loud music within the office.

47 armed men were found slain by a mighty sword in front of the Flying News headquarters. The cause of their death is undetermined; however, the police are investigating a possible link with O.J. Simpson.

O.J. Simpson was found dead atop the world trade center last night, with three arrows in his left foot. His brutal ex-father Homer is currently the prime suspect, but he disappeared after the TV was turned off and has, as yet, not been found.

Life-bituary

once there was 7

Vim Vocifero was recently discovered alive, humming to himself as he fished from an old tree just inside central park yesterday. Sources say that on the third day after his death, his life-functions were miraculously restored. We here at this publication take this as a sign that The Flying News was conceived and has been constantly backed by divine will.

Horoscope

Taurus- There is a guy around the corner looking at you through a periscope(Made you search with your eyes).
Aquarius- Don't drink anything orange. Wrathful orange fruit is after you and your kin.
Cancer- Read your horoscope twice today.
Gemini- An old woman with a cutlass is after you. I recommend running or a hand grenade.
Scorpio- How much is that doggy in the mirror?!
Aries- You shall die.
Leo- Do not fall into a vat o' radioactive wax unless you are aiming for three heads or a tail (interpret it as you might).
Capricorn- Travelling at speeds upwards of Mach 3 could be potentially painful if the vehicle is suddenly stopped by a pistachio, herring, or dill pickle.

Suggestions

We here at The Flying News live in a state of ignorant bliss. Any person who wishes to upset the balance and destroy this bliss will be dealt with unkindly. Suggestions such as "do not wipe your nose on the floor" and "keep The Flying News to yourself, please" are very hideous and the makers of these suggestions and suggestions like them will be ostracized, then exiled, then maimed.

Subscription Information

To subscribe, send us a self-addressed, stamped envelope containing some money to 5312 41st street, N.W. Washington D.C. 20015. The cost is $30.00 and it must be paid in American greenback-style money. If we don't get any money, we will be forced to sell our franchise in the U.S. and move to Mexico, or Alaska, or something. Nobody wants this to happen, not even us. We thank you for your support!

Next Month

Next month's issue will finally expose the names of the authors of this publication, so that the readers may spit on them for their words and actions and try to file suit for the harmful effects that this magazine may have. There will undoubtedly be a continuation of brain expansion as well as a cache of free peanuts. But I am now really and quickly running out of space on this page so I can't elaborate see you next month-

Ad: Donut sale reform!

The Fourth Form is reforming the donut sale for better customer patronage in these areas:

- better donuts
- better selections
- better orange juice: this time, we will use only pure orange juice, straight from the vine.
- more orange juice (contains less than 10% fruit juice)
- more coordination in handling donuts- we will promise to hold the donuts by their respective corners
- donuts that are tastier than that over there .

Come to our donut sale on Friday, the fourteenth of January and be ubiquitous and tasty.
